

ABSTRACT

A processor isolation technique enhances debug capability in a multiprocessor circuit. A bypass register has a bit location which may indicate that a processor is to be bypassed. A code entry point is selected to permit a downstream processor to do the work of the bypassed processor. The processors may be arrayed in a pipeline.